As AN indication of what can be made by raising tobacco we note the case of T. S. Terry, of Madison county, who rented ten acres of tobacco land for half the crop. When the tobacco was marketed Mr. Hagan received $372 per acre, or $3,720 for the ten acres. Our land will not produce in weight like blue grass land, but the fibre is so much better that better prices may be obtained. Say it will make two-fifths in weight, the fibre being very superior will make up for part of the loss in weight by bringing a better price. It is safe, indeed, to say that if only 10 cents per pound be realized that a man can make $50 or $60 per acre. What other crop will net him as much? Tuck Creekbaum, deceased, got 17 cents for all his crop. Think it over and put in a few acres.

Walter F. Warnock, editor of the Chronicle, published at Inverness, Florida, has this complimentary notice of our old friend and erstwhile employee on THE HERALD: "Since February 1st G. S. McAfee, a practical printer from Kentucky, has had charge of this (editorial) department, and to him is due the credit of its superior excellence. We regret to note that he leaves us on April 3rd, for we will surely miss him. He is not only a good all-round printer, but is a fluent, thoughtful and competent editorial writer, and we heartily commend him to the craft as such."

The postal authorities at Washington recognizing the liability of postmasters to make mistakes in getting letters in the wrong boxes, have fixed a penalty of 200 dollars on persons taking mail out of the office other than their own and not returning it at once. This Law also includes newspapers. The excuse that it is the postmaster's fault makes no difference. If you have been getting other people's mail you had better take warning or you may get yourself into trouble.

SEED CORN.

Mr. Bamberge Gives Good Advice Concerning its Planting and Cultivation.

[Lexington Leader.]

Do not plant a grain of corn until the ear from which that grain came has been tested for germination strength. If you buy seed corn buy only in the ear. Don't buy shelled seed corn under any consideration. Tested corn assures a good stand; a good stand assures a good crop. It is just as easy to have a good stand as a bad one. It is cheaper to cultivate a good stand than it is to cultivate a bad one. Then why not have a good stand.

A convenient way to test corn is as follows: Make a box the size of the paper partitions of an egg case, but an inch deeper. Put in the paper partitions and fill the spaces full of clean sand. If no sand is convenient soil will answer. Rotten sawdust will do. Joggle down what ever you use until well packed and the sand or soil is even with the tops of the papers. Give a good watering. Make a notch in the upper left hand corner of the box, so as to ascertain where work is begun. From one of the ears or corn selected for seed, take six grains from six different parts of the ear, including the but and tip. Place those six grains flat on the sand, or soil, in the square under the notch, and mark the ear from which the grains came. No. 1. Do the same with the second ear, placing those six grains in the square under the first and mark that ear No 2, and so on until the ears you have selected for seed are represented in the box, or boxes if more than one is necessary. When the box is full, spread a piece of cheese cloth over the top of the grains and fill the box with sand. It will require only about half an inch of sand or soil.

Set the box in a moderately warm place out of a draft and let in remain for 120 hours, Then bring to the light, lift off the sand and cloth to examine the grains. Save for seed only those ears of which the six grains in the box have shown a full strong germination. Those ears which have not shown a full germinaton should be thrown into the crib for feeding purposes.

By this simple process a perfect stand of corn may be had. After the corn is planted cultivate shallow and keep up the cultivation until in roasting ear. At the last plowing plant cow peas, peanuts, soy beans, and follow with some other crop than corn.

W. H. BAMBERGE.
Agricultural Superintendent of the Q. & C. Railroad.

Make It Yourself.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

State Committee Meeting.

Henry R. Prewitt, chairman of the Democratic State committee, has called a meeting of that body to be held at the Leland Hotel, in Lexington, Friday, April 2. It will dispose of:

First:—All contests growing out of the selection of committees in districts and counties, notably the Kenton county wrangle.

Second:—Determine the advisability of at once establishing the permanent headquarters for campaign purposes which has been frequently discussed.

Third:—The selections of a subcommittee of the Committee to whom will be delegated the direction and control of this permanent headquarters, which will be in charge of a secretary.

Learn to Laugh.

A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is a welcome sunbeam in a sick room. The world is too busy to care for your ill and sorrows. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learns to hide your pains and aches under pleasant smiles. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache, or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels but are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. A good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic is not wanted anywhere and is a nuisance as well. Above all, give pleasure. Lose no chance of giving pleasure. You will pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore that you can show to any human being, you had better now; do not defer or neglect it, for you will not pass this way again.

An Inexpensive Trial.

Just a big handsome magazine 10x15 inches with from forty to sixty pages each month. You'll want to read every line, too, in each issue because they are full of human interest. You have sentiment in your choice of this Magazine also because it was founded by Joel Chandler Harris, and will be kept clean, sweet and wholesome always.

Julian Harris, eldest son of Joel Chandler Harris, is editor, and you will like the snap and ginger of the Magazine, and its features unlike any other. A widely appealing Magazine from every viewpoint, abounding in the best of everything—stories, articles, illustrations, home department, fashions, poems, wit and humor, comprehensive science and powerful editorials.

Think of this most liberal of offers we are authorized to make. Write to Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine, Atlanta, Ga., saying you saw the offer in this paper, to send their Magazine three months on trial.

If at the end of three months you do not want it longer you pay nothing, and the publication is stopped; but if satisfied you send them $1.00, paying for the Magazine received and for nine months more. When you are ready to pay they have some splendid premiums with dollar subscriptions.

Address now Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine, Atlanta, Ga.

The "Peace Oak."

The great oak trees in the garden at the White House are known as the "Peace Oaks," They were planted previous to the Civil war by John J. Crittenden and James B. Beck, of Kentucky. These men, who were representing the state of Kentucky in the United State senate, attempted to defer the war by means of a peace conference. Their failure was symbolized by planting two acorns, from which grew these carefully guarded trees.

Two small seedling oaks—"Peace Trees"—sprouted from acorns the fruit of the "Peace Oaks," have been sent from the botanical gardens in Washington to be planted in one of the public parks of Kentucky.

Small-Pox In Powell.

Andy Ledford living on Snow creek, this county, has broken out with small-pox at his home. Dr Martin is attending him and reports that while he has had a pretty severe attack he is getting along very nicely now. Several exposures in the family have been made, but aside from this it is likely that the disease will not spread furtner. Mr. Ledford has no idea where he contracted the disease as he has not been out of the county for nearly five weeks, than to Mt. Sterling court.

All of the family exposed has been vaccinated and it is thought that the disease will be confined to them alone.—Clay City Times.

A few days ago Dr. Geo. O. Grayes sold to A. Floyd Byrd fourteen acres of land in the western suburbs of the city at $650 per acre, or a total of $9,100. This land was purchased a few years ago by Dr. Graves at something over $400 per acre. Mr, Byrd has one of the handsomest suburban home in the city, surrounded by spacious grounds and desirably located.—Winchester Democrat.

Memories of the Past.

Some of our friends suggest that we run a "Twenty Years Ago" column in the paper. All right. How is this for a starter? "Twenty years ago John Dobbins promised to pay his subscribtion when he sold his wheat. Now the question is, 'Did John lie, or is he still holding his wheat?' "—Louisiana Press.

Indigeston Ends.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the wark of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggis and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Boost Your Town.

It is easy but almost inexcusable for a man to run down the place in which he lives—his home town. No talent whatever is required to do this. All that is necessary is to persistently talk about its shortcomings, which usually are few. And to ignore its advantages, which in almost every case are many. The kickers and knockers on their home town would do well to cultivate a little local patriotism, a quality that is too often sadly neglected.—Madisonville Hustler.

THINKING OF MOVING WEST?

If not, then make up your mind and write me for descriptive list of farms in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. All fine, level, productive land that will grow anything under the sun, at prices ranging from $15 to $40 an acre, and come where life is made tolerable by easy, profitable farming. Why sweat and fret life away in the vain effort to eke out a mere miserable sustenance from the rock-ribbed, root-laced hillsides as your father and father's father did, when there is so much good land to be had yet awhile for a mere song? Get out of the ruts—break away from the time-worn habit that keeps your nose to the grindstone. All it takes is resolution and a little nerve. Write me, and let me help you to a better condition.

Miss Lula Belle Manker, a student at the academy, left for her home at West Liberty Saturday and will not return.

Dr. Taylor Center, of Campton, came over Sunday to see his wife, who is visiting her parents, Crockett Coldiron and wife.

If you have any saddles or harness that need repairing take them to S. F. Reynolds and see how neatly and cheaply he can do the job.

J. D. Barker, of Grassy Creek, was in town Sunday. Should you be so inquisitive as to ask why, we would answer, "He was searching for a Nickell."

Mrs. Polly A. Center was initiated as a full fledged Lady Macabee Saturday at the order's regular meeting. New members are being added at each meeting.

Ben Murphy has six or eight new Weber wagons he wants to dispose of at cost. They can be seen at the store of N. C. Day, at Neola, who will give all information in regard to them.

Johnny Kash one day last week sold to Capt. Jack Rittenhouse a Jersey cow, five years old, for $75 cash. Johnny bought the same cow, when a calf, three months old, for $8, and bought her from Capt. Jack.

Henry Cecil and wife have been confined to their homes with sickness for a week past, and their illness coming just when Misses Myrtle and Catherine Cecil were convalescing, makes the family as one of affliction. Dr. C. H. Williams is attending them.

Was It a Case of Kidnaping?

One morning recently when Miss Ethel Cecil, daughter of Ed F. Cecil and wife, of near town, went out to feed the chickens she discovered that a fine white pullet, which was quite a favorite with the family, had mysteriously disappeared. Search was at once instituted, but after many fruitless hours of hunting all over the farm gave up all hopes of ever finding it again. Finally it was decided that the Poet, who had been stopping there for a few days and who left early in the morning of the discovery of the loss, had perhaps surreptitiously appropriated the fowl and brought it to THE HERALD office, which proved to be a fact, and in due course of time the editor and his better seven-eighths, together with others, partook of a luscious feast of stewed chicken, and all—at the expense of whom?

Oscar Cecil, one of the most progressive and prosperous farmers of Wolfe county, says he has planted an acre of ground in sweet potatoes for 25 successive years. He uses the same kind of potatoes each year, and says they produce as well now as when first put out. Also, he has planted one bushel of Irish potatoes every year on a certain piece of ground for the same time, the average yield being 25 bushels from one bushel planted. This controvers the theory that a species of seed will run out.

Every sufferer from rheumatism will find an effective relief in the use of Thacher's magnetic insoles. The writer has been a sufferer from rheumatism in its various forms for years. Quite recently he secured a pair of the insoles above mentioned and is glad to say they keep the feet from perspiration and relieve pain. In all cases not chronic they will afford relief. The price is $1. Address, Thacher Magnetic Shield Co., 159 Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Joe Long, the most notorious moonshiner known in these parts since Uncle Mat Greer's death, was captured Sunday at the home of Grant Nickell, on Byrd branch of Grassy, and six gallons of moonshine liquor found in his possession. Joe Long has never been apprehended but twice before, although he has been in the business for years. His partner, Marion Peyton, said to be, was not taken, and the business may go on indefinitely.

Bro. Derthick last week returned from his tour of Tennessee and says Livingston has been selected as the location of the C .W. B. M. Mission school. The citizens of that place have donated ground and other adjuncts to the value of $75,000, and the prospect is flattering, except that the building of that school will probably take from us Bro. Derthick and his very amiable wife, a contingency every good citizen will regret.

John Fetterly has ordered the machinery for his tiling plant, and ere the frost leaves the ground he will be soliciting orders for this much needed adjunct to the improvement of our land. Every farmer should encourage the enterprise.

Thursday night of last week the store and contents belonging to Harlan Stamper, at Campton, was destroyed by fire. The total loss is estimated at $3,500 The dwelling connected with the store was also destroyed at the same time.

At a meeting of the Town Trustees, Monday night, Joseph A. Rose was elected town marshal to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Ellsworth Lacy, who recently moved to Illinois.

Incidentally we learn that our sister city Jackson is soon to have a Republican paper. It is said that men prominent in National and State Republican affairs are backing the enterprise.

John Neace, of Owsley county, who has been attending Hazel Green Academy during the winter term, left Monday for Berea, where he will take a twenty weeks' course.

Important to Teachers.

Under the new school law, which is known as the County Unit School Law, the county becomes the unit. The present school districts are called sub-districts and have one trustee each, who was elected last August, when the first election under the new law was held. We have not learned the boundaries of the new educational divisions of the county, nor the sub-districts comprising same, and are consequently unable to publish them. For the guidance of those who desire to teach in the public schools, we append the following information:

On the last Saturday in June of each year, the teachers are placed by the trustees of the educational division in which the application of the teacher is placed.

The teacher's application for a school must be in writing, stating plainly salary, length of term (not less than six months), janitorship, etc., enclosing certificate of qualification with application. If applicant has no living certificate and expects to be qualified in the July or August examination, provisions can be made accordingly.

All applications must be filed with the secretary of the educational division in which the school is located previous to the last Saturday in June.

Contracts for the service of all teachers shall be in writing, signed in duplicate by the teacher and by the chairman and secretary of the division board in which the teacher is employed.

The ladies have been making a herculean effort to fence and clean up the new cemetery of our town. Being anxious to get it set in grass this spring, they appeal to everybody in town and vicinity to help them next Monday to finish fence and clean up. Let every man, woman and boy feel interested and bring out some kind of tool. Some a hoe, some a rake, an axe, a shovel and a wheelbarrow. A plow and team will not be objected to. Please turn out and help.

Nervous Collapse

"I have traveled for thirty years continually. I lost a great deal of sleep, which together with constant worry left me in such a nervous state that finally, after having two collapses of nervous prostration, I was obliged to give up traveling altogether. I doctored continually but with no relief. Dr. Miles' Nervine came to my rescue—I cannot describe the suffering which this Nervine saved me. Whenever I am particularly nervous a few doses relieve me." A. G. C. LIBBY, Wells, Me.

There are many nervous wrecks. There is nervous prostration of the stomach, of the bowels, and other organs. The brain, the kidneys, the liver, the nerve centers are all exhausted. There is but one thing to do—build up the nervous system by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Its strengthening influence upon the nervous system restores normal action to the organs, and when they all work in harmony, health is assured. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

THE PLAINS' GREATEST HUNT

BY BUFFALO BILL

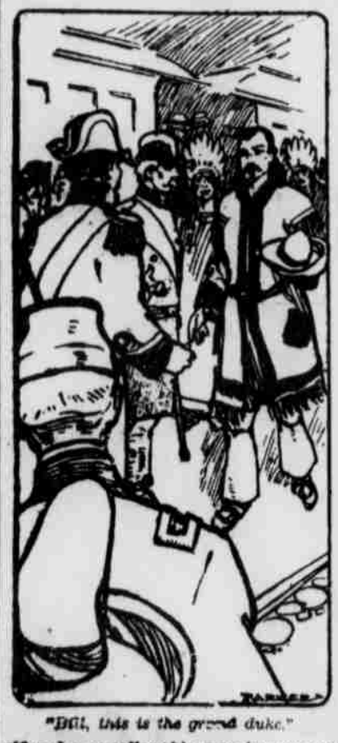

FROM "TRUE TALES OF THE PLAINS"

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY WILLIAM F. CODY

SPEAKING of General Custer reminds me of an international episode resulting from the friendship exhibited by Russia to the government of the United States during the civil war—the courtesies shown to the young Grand Duke Alexis. Among the events arranged in the programme was his visit to the far west to hunt for big game. The whole affair was under the direction of General Phil Sheridan, and Custer, from his youth, distinction and suitability, was particularly selected to chaperon and have charge of the grand duke and at the same time show him the horsemanship and admirable qualities of the American army officer. I had been ordered by General Sheridan to take charge of the matter and have everything in readiness for the grand duke and a large number of noblemen and officers of his staff. I had located a camp sixty miles from North Platte, on the Red Willow, in the heart of the buffalo country. Lieutenant E. M. Hayes, now brigadier general, retired, a dashing soldier, more familiarly known as General Jack Hayes, was assigned the duty of arranging the material and equipping the camp. There was no limit to the efforts to provide every luxury and comfort that lavish expense could procure. Provisions, wines, etc., of the finest had been freighted in from Chicago; tents for the royal guests were beautifully furnished with carpets, rugs, robes and with a stove in each tent. It certainly was a most beautiful camp, named Camp Alexis, and Lieutenant Hayes must have been inspired by some of the oriental tales of kingly camps in days of old and tried to "go it one better." Runners had been sent out and conferences had been held arranging for an assured peace meeting with Spotted Tail and other powerful chiefs to attend and give zest to the sport. I quote from the dispatches of the day to the press (from the New York Herald) relative to the same:

"Some forty odd superior wall tents were properly equipped for the guests alone. The arrangements of the camp, in brief, were complete, not to say luxurious, when the remote and wild section of the country is considered. Besides the cavalry escort, there were two mounted companies to guard safely the imperial tourists and sportsmen from the wrath and revenge of the numerous 'dog soldiers,' Indians under Chief Whistler. The chances are, however, that the reds will unite in rendering the duke's visit one of pleasure rather than one of fear or harm. Sheridan and 'Buffalo Bill' have persuaded them to such a course, and, furthermore, to procure their good behavior the general has brought out thirty wagon loads of provisions, which he has promised to distribute impartially among the red men at the end of the hunt if they restrain themselves from any violence. These presents assure such result. This perhaps may be considered a questionable way to secure a foreign guest from scalping or murder in the United States, but when it is known that the Indians are armed and outnumber the soldiers ten to one it will be admitted that Sheridan's 'tickle me and I will tickle you' policy is the only safe one to pursue. From 1,500 to 2,000 Indians are expected."

"Bill, this is the grand duke."

The arrival in North Platte is thus described in dispatches of Jan. 3, 1872:

"The duke alighted from the train; the natives of the little station formed in line along the platform and, almost involuntarily, simultaneously removed their hats in honor of the distinguished visitor. 'Little Phil' was master of ceremonies, and he was bound that not a moment should be lost in starting for the camp, sixty miles distant. He arranged with 'Buffalo Bill' to be on hand and act as guide, and the renowned scout was promptly on time and in all his element. He was seated on a coal-black charger and, with his long hair and spangled buckskin suit, appeared as the feared and beloved by all for miles around.

"White men and barbarous Indians are alike moved by his presence, none of them daring to do aught in word or deed contrary to his rules of law and civilization. After the ducal party had alighted, General Sheridan beckoned the famous scout to approach. He advanced carelessly, yet respectfully. 'Your highness,' said the general, 'this is Mr. Cody, otherwise and universally known as "Buffalo Bill." Bill, this is the grand duke.'

"'I am glad to see you,' said the hero of the plains. 'You have come out here, so the general tells me, to shoot some buffaloes.'

"'Yes,' answered Alexis, 'and I hope to have a good, fine time. I heard of you before, and I am glad to meet you here.'

"'Thank you, thank you,' said Bill, with a smile as honest as that of a maiden. 'If the weather holds good, we'll have one of the finest hunts that there ever was on the continent.'

"'Buffalo Bill' is the famous western scout employed by Sheridan for Indian service and one who is efficient and reliable. Bill is about thirty years of age, is about six feet in height, and with other proportions he has a pleasing face and fine address and would have been prominent in other walks of life had not circumstances made him famous as a western hunter.

"The tales that are told of 'Buffalo Bill's' hunting experiences since he was old enough to ride a horse—for Bill was born and brought up on the plains—are truly wonderful to hear, related as they are around our blazing campfires and in the presence of all of the paraphernalia of frontier life upon the plains. Bill was dressed in a buckskin suit of trimmed fur and wore a black slouch hat, his long hair hanging in ringlets down his shoulders.

"As he dashed from the railroad station he was closely followed by the grand duke in an open Concord wagon drawn by four powerful horses, which carried the distinguished representatives of two powerful nations, escorted by the cavalry, at a fearful rate of speed over the rugged prairie."

Of course there was a glorious time in camp—in fact, "high jinks," as far as the natural military discipline, the dignified and courteous qualities and manners governing both guests and hosts permitted. After a day of rest following the sixty mile ride and a night of social exchanges my scouts and Indian allies reported the presence of a herd of buffaloes. We gave a first run, in which General Custer, myself and many officers gave an exhibition to our guests of the manner and method of hunting buffaloes, showing and explaining the necessity of trained horses used to the job and the method of shooting, either through the loins or under the heart. The grand duke eventually mounted probably the best buffalo hunting horse that ever lived, "Buckskin Joe," and soon adapted himself to the sport. General Custer especially gave a magnificent exhibition of skill, dash and expertness. He and myself accompanied the grand duke, and the latter acquitted himself splendidly. We cut out eventually two or three of the finest horned buffaloes, colossal in size, which he brought down. The magnificent heads I secured, sent them by express to Chicago to the taxidermist and they now ornament the royal castles in St. Petersburg. During the hunt elk, antelope, deer and coyote heads were treated in the same way and sent home as trophies. Photographs were taken of the camp and some of the scenes, and it is to be regretted that photography had not been sufficiently perfected then to get what would be a sensational connection of the men, the horses, the buffaloes and the guns in action. But the grand battue, or roundup, was reserved for the last, which was an Indian hunt for buffaloes. Camp scenes and Indian war dances, powwows and feasts, proved of interest to the royal guests, who expressed delight at all they saw. General Custer gave some practical military drills and evolutions as accompanying exhibits, and in the social education they received practical instructions as well in the game of poker.

But of the Indian roundup of buffaloes I might say that such a picturesque assemblage, such natural conditions, when nature furnished in its primitiveness the striking adjunct of an illimitable hunting ground and innumerable varieties of big game, magnificent savage allies, in all the rainbow brilliancy of their native garb and fantastic adornment, mingled with the flower of the veteran cavalry of Uncle Sam commanded by General Phil Sheridan, General E. O. C. Ord, commander of the department of the Platte, with the gallant Custer, Colonel Mike Sheridan the Forsyths, Assistant Surgeon M. V. Ash, Major Sweitzer, Colonel Palmer and Lieutenant Hayes, a brilliant array of famed officers, and the gorgeously accoutered foreign officials, admirals and generals, and a detachment of the flower of our army, made a pageant so spirited as to linger in memory as a scene in every respect unique beyond compare up to date and one well nigh impossible in the future to duplicate. I had located an immense herd of buffaloes, and all arrangements were complete, "the blanket was waved three times," and off the outfit started at daylight. The Indians were painted in a variety of colors, had discarded all their artistic adornments, different colored ornaments, jewelry, feathers and other apparel and looked like real children of nature, almost in Adam's costume; only a breechclout around their loins, moccasins on their feet, no saddle, no bridle, the ponies with only a thin leather hackamore between their teeth; some with only light bow and arrows, others with their rifle, revolver, ammunition, no unnecessary weight, so that they could ride like lightning. They even spared their horses and walked most of the time, but with such speed that it kept every one "hopping" to go the pace. This lick kept up until the herd was in sight.

A council was held, and the calumet was passed around, and everything was ready, while every Indian mounted his horse, which seemed more excited than his rider. About 200 were in the front line, 150 in the second line and 100 composed the rear. The chiefs were in the front, snapping their whips in the air and holding the riders together, with the ponies foaming, prancing and stamping their feet, impatient as their masters, each seeming to form one soul and one body, centaurs, all waiting for the signal, all with one feeling, one desire, to gain as many laurels as possible when the chief suddenly gave the signal to go. Thunder and lightning! What a tornado! What a storm of horsemen as, with impetuosity, these nomads dashed on their prey. With the roar of Niagara, the speed of a cyclone, the swiftness of an avalanche, these strange figures threw themselves in a mad, wild rush on their fleeing victims, and soon in the midst of the dust cloud one could only see an indescribable mixup of flying arrows, accompanied with rifle shots, galloping horses, falling buffaloes and fleet riding Indians on their wild ponies. It was a confusion in one sense and regulated action in another, forming almost a delirium of delight to the huntsmen. Some went flying from one end of the prairie to the other after stragglers, while the main guard formed in such a manner as to make the buffaloes circle. The signal to halt was given, and as the dust cloud rose little by little like a curtain in the theater the horses were seen at a standstill, and the prairie was strewn with the buffaloes that fell. Calm and practical fellows were these Indians. Even the horses began quietly pasturing on the grasses, while the hunters proceeded to pull off the hides and cut out the tongues and favorite pieces of their native cattle and preparing the meat in strips for preservation.

With the roar of Niagara the Indians dashed on their prey.

During the progress of the hunt the grand duke expressed a desire to have a test made as to the use of the bow and arrow of the Indians. "Two Lance," with a reputation as a buffalo hunting chief, was selected for the purpose. While riding at full speed he shot an arrow from his bow which pierced a buffalo clean through from side to side. The grand duke considered the feat so remarkable that he took the arrow home with him as a memento of the occasion.

The commissary wagons assisted in bringing fresh meat to camp, and great festivities marked the closing of this grand hunt. Guests and hosts had tasted of one of the most glorious feasts that ever true Nimrods attended. Sheridan was delighted, everybody was congratulated, and the picture still lingers in my mind with young General Custer predominating the grand assemblage. He was the life and spirit, one might say, of the occasion, and to me it is sad to think of another picture that depends almost alone on imagination and of which "more anon"—that of Custer's last battle.

The fault which humbles us is of more use than a good action which puffs us up with pride.—Bovee.

Remarkable Story

The story of Mrs. Matilda Warwick, of Kokomo, Ind., as told below, proves the curative properties of that well-known female remedy, Wine of Cardui. Mrs. Warwick says:

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

"I suffered from pains in my head, shoulders, limbs, side, stomach low down, dizziness, chills, nervousness, fainting spells and other female troubles. I was almost dead. Three doctors did not help me. At last, I took Cardui, and with the first bottle obtained relief. Now I am cured. But for Cardui, I would have been dead." Try Cardui.
